This seminar will cover different types of magnetic and superconducting materials, magnetic measurements, and examples of how they come together to solve real-life engineering problems. The lecture will include some amazing demos.